RESPONDING TO THE CALL

2013/14 COMMUNITY REPORT

MEDICAL MUSCLE

When STARS introduced the AW139 to our patients in 2013, it didn't take long to see the tangible difference it was making in hundreds of lives.

With the capabilities of our AW139s, we're not only flying faster, further and stopping to refuel less often; STARS is travelling to some communities more than ever. Our expanded flight range means we can respond to emergencies in places we rarely landed previously. For instance, we took 13 flights to Medicine Hat in the first six months of 2014, compared with four flights in all of 2013; we made eight flights to Cold Lake in the first six months of 2014, compared with seven flights in all of 2013 and there were nine flights to Hinton in the first six months of 2014, compared with six flights in all of 2013.

Meanwhile, our air medical crew members celebrate the increased space for them to work in while saving lives. (AW139 pictured at right). Our patients deserve the best STARS can offer.

"With this additional range, speed and access, the AW139 is like a security blanket of coverage for our patients," said paramedic Greg Barton, who has been with STARS in Calgary for 14 years. Barton was also part of the internal STARS' team that developed the medical interior design to meet the complex needs of critically ill and injured patients.

STARS currently has three AW139s in our fleet: one each based in Edmonton and Calgary, AB, of which nearly $27 million of the funds needed to purchase the machines was raised thanks to the generosity of 500 donors. A third AW139 is based in Saskatoon, SK and was made possible after PotashCorp provided the $27-million needed for the helicopter, its specialized medical interior and the hangar that serves as the Saskatoon base.

STARS has already carried out more than 450 missions with Alberta's AW139s since September, 2013.

The AW139 flies further, faster and has more room to work on patients.

"The AW139 is like a security blanket of coverage for our patients."

GREG BARTON, FLIGHT PARAMEDIC BASED IN CALGARY.

"To ensure we deliver the best care to patients, STARS hired Dr. JN Armstrong – a respected anesthesiologist and longtime STARS helicopter pilot – as Chief Medical Officer for the organization."

STARS PRESIDENT AND CEO,
ANDREA ROBERTSON

Answering the call during historic Alberta flooding, a backup helicopter complete with a secondary crew were activated to respond to calls for help in June, 2013.

An intensive site audit by The Commission on Accreditation of Medical Transport Systems confirmed our accreditation with the international medical transport standards organization for another three-year term. This ongoing, internationally recognized process confirms our commitment to excellence in patient care and safety.

MISSIONS POSSIBLE

Just 54 minutes after Saskatchewan's second STARS' base opened, STAR-11 out of Saskatoon took to the skies on its first mission. The historic day was not only an early indication of just how quickly STARS was welcomed across the province, but a glimpse into a busy future for our organization in Saskatchewan.

STARS flew a staggering 855 missions in 253 communities from two bases in Saskatchewan in 2013. Nearly 900 people – or at least two people every day – depended on our critical care skills and our helicopter to get them urgent care quickly.

In addition to high call volumes, STARS was busy in other ways. Regina was the first of STARS' six bases to begin stocking blood in advance, to be used for life-saving transfusions on air medical missions. The initiative – a Canadian first – is also in place at other STARS' bases.

STARS' reach in Saskatchewan stretched beyond helicopter missions in many ways. Our clinical education team visited 84 rural communities across the province, providing specialized critical care skill training to other emergency care providers in the chain of survival.

Meanwhile, we continue to be a key partner in the Saskatchewan government's Collaborative Emergency Centres program, in which we share our highly trained physicians with health care staff at rural hospitals. The initiative operates in communities that have difficulty maintaining 24-hour service, helps to ensure that everyone in the community has access to urgent care.

Nearly 900 people in Saskatchewan – or at least two people every day – depended on STARS' critical care skills.

"We are so lucky to have the support of people like Stan and Jane Grad. They understand how unique and important it is to have physicians so involved with patient care and donated $5 million to ensure this continues."

DAVID MOWAT, CHAIR (VOLUNTEER) STARS FOUNDATION, BOARD OF DIRECTORS

This is the largest personal donation in STARS' history and was prompted by a personal connection with the organization.

Two new medical education units (one of the modified motor homes is pictured above, right) were purchased and equipped with advanced human patient simulator mannequins. In total, four units stationed in Calgary, Grande Prairie, Saskatoon and Winnipeg travel across Western Canada and deliver continuing education opportunities to rural medical providers. STARS is working hard with our partners to improve emergency medical care in rural areas.

Eleven helicopters are now in operation – eight BK117 helicopters and three new-technology AW139 helicopters. Having access to a fleet of helicopters ensures we can be available more often, even through the busy summer months.

COMING TOGETHER

Six-year-old Jason Guenther was living a boy's dream on Aug. 10, 2013. He and a handful of other children were atop a colourful float in Winkler, Manitoba's annual summer parade, waving and throwing candy to familiar faces in the crowd.

"It started out as one of the best days of his life," said Elma Guenther, Jason's mom.

Instead, an excited Jason stumbled as he jumped from the float and the vehicle rolled over him. The parade halted as the boy lay injured on the ground. Paramedics stationed nearby responded quickly, taking Jason to Boundary Trails Health Centre. While en route, the health-care team feared Jason sustained internal injuries and required urgent critical care, so STARS was requested. As the pilots flew to Winnipeg, the air medical crew worked on Jason in the back of the helicopter.

Many in the small community of Winkler, on the western edge of Manitoba's Red River Valley, were devastated by Jason's incident and rallied around his family. His mother was touched by the kindness of so many, including STARS.

"I was in awe," said Elma Guenther. "When the crew came to get Jason they were so calm, organized and professional I knew right away he was in good hands."

Mayor Martin Harder feels that the residents of Winkler are in good hands with STARS just a phone call away. Over the past year, STARS has visited the rural town three times and has flown 17 other patients from the area. Harder knows several of the patients from Winkler and is pleased to know all of them have recovered well from their injuries.

"You don't realize how much you appreciate the service until someone in your community depends on it," said the mayor. "We, like many communities across Manitoba, are hard-working people who want the best for our families. We see STARS as an additional safety net for when the unexpected happens."

Martin Harder, Mayor of Winkler, MB and Very Important Patient, Jason Guenther support STARS.

"You don't realize how much you appreciate the service until someone in your community depends on it."

MARTIN HARDER, MAYOR OF WINKLER, MB.

STARS became the first helicopter EMS service in Canada to stock blood at our bases. This saves precious time for patients as we no longer need to land and pick up blood. Previously, crews needed to stop at a hospital en route to receive supplies. Regina was the first base to operate this program, with Calgary and Saskatoon following afterward. Work progresses to expand this program to all STARS' bases.

We received the Night Vision Mark of Excellence Award in recognition for our leadership in establishing the first civilian night vision goggle program in Canada. Significantly, we were nominated for this award by an aviation standards inspector with Transport Canada. This technology makes it easier for pilots to fly at night, and allows STARS to be available 24 hours a day.

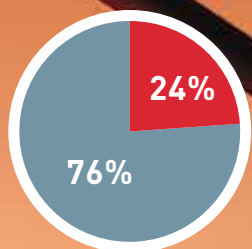

"As the chair of this not for profit I am proud we remain focused on providing the best care possible. The AW139s are a big part of that."

BRIAN VAASJO, CHAIR (VOLUNTEER) STARS' BOARD OF DIRECTORS.
